Notes for EDWARD MAYO:
According to H. Mark Whitely, the Mayos came to the U.S. from England via Barbados.

Edward was a long-time Clerk of the Court and prominent Quaker in Pasquotank Co., NC

Mayo was a Quaker. Goodwell says he appears to have left Barbados for Charlestowne in Carolina. Records show he and his wife owned 750 acres on the Ashley River in 1678. Edward arrived in Albemarle without a wife but with four children.

Patrick Henley and his wife Mary were in Barbados when the Mayos were there.

Who is the Edward Mayo mentioned in Virginia Land Records, Broaderbuns CD, who was transported to Nansemond by Robert Bennett 1635? See page 553.

A Patrick Henley shown in census Albemarle Co, NC, 1696

GENEALOGY IN PRINT - BOOKS AND LIBRARY COLLECTIONS

North Carolina Hist. Society, The Quarterly, June 1968, says Patrick came to America 1642 and settled in Philadelphia. His tombstone bears the date of his death, 2-28-1698. For more, read on ...

Just to demonstrate that research isn't necessarily correct just because someone has collected a large mass of data:

Cranford Collection, Forsyth Co. Public Library, Winston-Salem, NC, says Patrick came from England 1682 to Pennsylvania with wife, Sarah. According to Goodwell, his first wife was Mary Scott, who gave birth to a daughter in 1686 (see below). Cranford material also says Patrick and Sarah came to Philadelphia with William Penn Oct 20, 1682, on the Welcome. The Welcome Society does not list him. Cranford says Patrick's brother, Robert Henley, was Lord Chancellor of England in 1682. This too seems to be lacking proof.

From Asheboro, NC, Public Library, Barbara Grigg Collection, a letter written March 27, 1974 to Barbara Grigg (a Henley researcher) by Marian Henley Goodwell (Mrs. Kenneth A. Goodwell, 206 Henley Road South, Richmond, Indiana 47374, Oct 1988. Following material is also from Goodwell, author of "Our Henley Grandfathers." First is "a progress report" of her research, then follows excerpts from her book:

Goodwell writes in her letter to Grigg: "Most of the established dates (I present) are from Quaker Records. A 'headright claim' made by Patrick in 1693/94 names his deceased wife as Mary, and lists but one daughter, Mary. Therefore Elizabeth and John were probably children of Sarah, to whom Patrick was married by 1693/94. Anne's birth date is from a Quaker Record and all the children are associated with Sarah, widow of Patrick, in later records. The earliest record which could refer to Patrick is found in Hathaway -- the death of a 'Mr. Henley,' 9.4.1691. This could logically refer to his first wife and be a mistake in copying or recording. 'North Carolina Higher Court Record shows a debt Patrick owed 'to your wife's funeral, to the trouble of you and our wife's sickness, to paling your wife's grave.' The debt was to Francis Heartly whose will was probated 5.2.1692, so the debt had to be incurred before that while he was still living.

"The two volumes of North Carolina High Court Records give us a wealth of references to Patrick. On 7.10.1692 he was sued by Henry Jenkins, and in 1693 by Joseph Hallett. He served as a juror 3 times in 1693, 3 times in 1694, 3 times in 1695, and once in 1696. Beginning 2.6.1694 Sarah is mentioned as his wife, and many times thereafter, usually in connection with suits brought against them concerning her former husband, John Culpepper. In 1694 Patrick petitioned for ownership of the plantation on which he lived. In 1695 he was appointed auditor of the estate of Adam Gamball, mariner. Other suits in 1693 and also in 1697-98 would seem to indicate his knowledge of ships and sailing. One document mentions him as Master of the 'Jane & Sarah,' a vessel sailing from North Carolina in 1698. On 7.24.1696 Patrick gave Daniel Akehurst, a prominent resident, his power of attorney, and appears then to have removed with his family 'from this Government' to Philadelphia.

"Patrick's will was made the same day in July, 1696, in Albemarle, N.C., leaving his estate to his wife unless she 'die before her return from this voyage,' then naming his children including 'to child wife now goes with'. Since Anne was not born until 1698, Sarah probably lost the baby mentioned in the will. Or if Anne's birth date is New Style, 1.1.1698 could have been Old Style 1697 and be this child carried in July, 1696.

"A Philadelphia record shows Patrick paid rent (tax) there in 1697 or 1698. Also in Philadelphia his wife, Sarah, settled three debts after his death, for 100 Pds., 12 Pds. adn 85 Pds. A Quaker record in Philadelphia establishes Patrick's death - a record of his burial copied into 'an account of the Burialls of such as are not friends within this Town of Philadelphia - the record of friends being distinctly taken in another place of this Book.' Date 2.28.1698.

"Patrick's will was administered by Sarah in Philadelphia 5.20.1698. Since she was living, his property would have all gone to her, including his 'estate either in Europe or America.' There also exists in Philadelphia a partial inventory of his possessions taken after his death, dated 4.20.1698 ...

"A 1698 or 1699 land survey petition in North Carolina indicates Patrick's heirs did own land in North Carolina. If Sarah made a trip to England concerning property there, no record it it has been found.

"Two 1694 court records in N.C. indentify him 'Patrick Henley of Precinct of Pasquotank.' In 1696 the power of attorney action is from 'Patrick Henley of Roanoke.' (Roanoke was a contemporary name for Edenton in Chowan County.)

"From the above facts we might assume that Patrick Henley was a man of some resources - an estate in Europe as well as America, land owned in Pasquotank and Chowan Counties, debts incurred, and debts paid, Master of a sailing vessel. Most of our information about him is after he was married to Sarah and there is always the possibility that the money and property were hers. John Culpepper was the son of an established family and no doubt left his wife some property. We also know Patrick was not a Friend at his death, though his wife, Sarah, was from a Quaker family, and all his children were Friends later. He sailed at least one ship and other records show further knowledge of and traffic with mariners and shipping. He was living in North Carolina in the Albemarle region by 1692, removed to Philadelphia in 1696 and died there in 1698.

"The Albemarle region of North Carolina was sparsely settled at that time. There were no villages or settlements - just 'landings,' swamps and some cleared 'plantations'. Transportation would have been principally by boat so knowledge of the sea and ships would have been normal. It was a barter society with tobacco the most valuable currency, and corn and potatoes also being important crops. One debt Patrick was to pay in 'wheat at the next ensueing crop'. Marriages were early and remarriages quick, for it was unsafe for single women. It is likely that to serve as juror in the Court, as Patrick did, one had to be a freeholder - own a certain amount of land. Although the Court records of him are over just a few years, that is perhaps because none, or very few, have survived from earlier years. Since dates are before 1752 when 'Old Style' changed to 'New Style', slight discrepancies may be due to this ..."

Untrue "Family traditions," as mentioned in Goodwell's letter to Grigg:
That Patrick sailed from England to America on the Welcome in 1682.
His brother Robert Henley was Lord Chancellor of England.
Patrick arrived in America in 1642.

Another tradition Goodwell mentions without comment as to accuracy: Patrick was Irish because of the red hair prominent in the family. The following is from her book:

"For Quakers, a forefather who arrived on the Welcome with William Penn is analogous to another's pride in being a Mayflower descendant. The Welcome Society, founded in 1906, has researched some 300 claimants and found only 60 likely to have actually come on the Welcome. Patrick is not even among the claimants and there seems to exist no evidence so far to support the family tradition.

"There is nothing in in early Philadelphia records to point to Patrick's presence there until 1697 or 1698, when he would have come from North Carolina.

"Since many Albemarle families came first to Virginia and then traveled to North Carolina to settle where more land was being opened up and was available, one could consider that possibility with Patrick. Perhaps -and probably - by coincidence there are the following interesting facts: A Reynolds Henley settled in James City County, VA (the Williamsburg area) in 1661. There are records of just one son, Leonard, who remained there. He married an Elizabeth Richardson, and one of their grandsons was named Patrick. Our Patrick's will, 1696, was witnessed by a Stephen Richardson, and a Stephen Richardson the same day witnessed the court request Patrick made to give Daniel Akehurst power of attorney for him.

"There was also a Peter Henley who was Chief Justice of the Province of North Carolina in Edenton in 1757 (his death). His son John claimed land in England at 'Abbot's Wooton, Dorset.' An Esajah Henley was a legatee in a Chowan Precinct court case earlier.

"Trueblood Family in America' says Patrick's sister, Ellinor, married Stephen Scott in Pennsylvania. They moved to Pasquotank Co., NC circa 1700 with Patrick's widow and children where Stephen m/2 Elizabeth Jordan, and d. 1710. This seems to support the theory that Patrick came to Philadelphia first since he had a sister there.

"History of Perquimans County' says Elizabeth Jordan, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Ratcliff)

Jordan (who were m.1688), m. Stephen Scott of Pasquotank County, NC. This Elizabeth Jordan couldn't have been born before c1690, but could have been 15 by 1705 to marry Stephen Scott who first married Ellinor and who d. 1710.

"Mayo family records say Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Mayo and sister of Sarah, m/1 c1698 Stephen Scott who died in 1710. This could be Stephen Scott who m/1 Ellinor Henley, if the dates are somewhat wrong.

"Patrick's will, written in 1696, mentions brother-in-law Stephen Scott. Either Ellinor Henley or Elizabeth Mayo as Stephen's wife could make him brother-in-law to Patrick.

"To further complicate the situation, Patrick's 1696 will was witnessed by both Ellinor Scott and Elizabeth Scott in Albemarle, NC, and Ellinor Scott was present in 1698 when the will was administered in Philadelphia.

"This is a progress report written for the purpose of giving general information. It is not meant to include all the facts or to be specific in detail ... my purpose has been to summarize Patrick's story in narrative style, using sources generously shared with me by others ..."

This following is from the book later produced by Marian Goodwell:
Patrick spelled his name "Henly." Most after him used the "e."

"The earliest as yet discovered information about Patrick Henly places him in Barbados in 1686 when he and his wife, Mary, had their daughter, Mary, baptized in the Parish of St. Michael. The following year, on May 30th 1687, Patrick Henly and Thomas Henly witnessed the will of a Henry Leeland of the town of St. Michaels. The Island of Barbados had been occupied by the British since 1605 and was a prosperous sugar-growing colony. It was a popular stop over for vessels sailing from England before they proceeded to the American coastal ports. As early as 1680 the Council and Assembly of Barbados petitioned the Lords of Trade and Plantations in England: 'People no longer come to Barbados, many having departed to Carolina, Jamaica, and the Leeward Islands in hope of settling the land which they cannot obtain here.' Patrick and Mary his wife were in Carolina by 1691, perhaps for this reason.

"Mary died in the Albemarle area of Carolina in what is now Pasquotank Co, NC. The date of September, 1691, is found in Hathaway, and it is confirmed by a debtor bill against Patrick filed later in the North Carolina courts:

- to your wife's funerall
- to the trouble of you and your wife's sickness
- to paling your wife's grave.

"Mary, wife of Patrick, is named in his headright claim. These claims were made for colonization purposes. A settler was entitled to fifty acres of land not only for himself but for each person whom he imported to Carolina. Patrick's list also included a second Mary Henley, his mother. This was not his daughter for children could not be named. Both Mary Henlys were also listed by a neighbor as 'Mr. Henly' wife and his mother,' confirming this explanation.

"With the use of the above record, we can assume that Patrick arrived in Carolina sometime between 1687 and 1691, with his wife, Mary, his small daughter, Mary, and his mother, Mary. Some family stories mention a sister, Ellinor Henly, who married Stephen Scott, but this is unlikely. The story persisted because Stephen Scott was named Patrick's brother-in-law in his will -- not because he was married to a mythical sister of Patrick, but because Patrick's second wife and Stephen's wife were sisters. Stephen had a sister, Ellinor Scott, who appears to have lived for a time in Patrick's household. Of such are the makings of 'traditions.'

"Family legends usually say that Patrick Henly came from England. 'Henley' is a common name in England. There is a city named 'Henley on thames' and in Stratford on Avon Shakespeare's birthplace is on 'Henley Street.' Although Patrick was probably from England, the occasional legend that he came from Ireland is credible with such a given name.

"The far northeastern section of today's North Carolina where Patrick Henly lived was settled by trappers, traders and adventurers coming from Virginia beginning in the 1650's and 1660's. It was known first as Virginia's "Southern Plantation" and then as the "Albemarle." The government was in the hands of eight Lords Proprietors - absentee feudal landlords living in London. The settlers suffered under unfair laws and taxes as well as self-seeking appointed rulers and the early years of the colony were marked with disorders, confusion and violence. This area was referred to as North Carolina as distinguished from Charles Towne which was in South Carolina.

"Patrick Henly, since he brought his family with him, certainly came to Carolina seeking land and opportunity. He lived in Pasquotank County along the broad Pasquotank River in the Newbegun Creek area south of the present day Elizabeth City. This was a sparsely settled area having no towns, no public buildings, no churches and only paths communicating and traveling almost entirely by water. The colony was remote from the rest of America, the route to the outside being through the dense and hazardous Great Dismal Swamp to the north or by sea to the east. Ships faced a difficult passage through a no longer existing inlet in the shifting sands of the Outer Banks into the Atlantic Ocean.

"Sometime near the end of the year 1692 or early in 1693 Patrick Henly 'Entermarried with' Sarah Mayo, widow of John Culpepper, a man whose name survives in history notorious for his participation in Carolina's Culpepper Rebellion in 1678 and 'never in his element but whilst fishing in troubled waters.' Sarah was the daughter of Edward Mayo, a Justice and long-time Clerk of the Court and a prominent member of the Society of Friends (Quaker) in Pasquotank County, North Carolina.

"From the time of his marriage to the widow Culpepper, Patrick was involved in dozens of Court actions concerning his affairs. Most if not all of them were in defense of or as a result of his wife Sarah's inheritance from her late husband, John Culpepper. Patrick was named administrator for Thomas Clancy's estate because John Culpepper had been his 'greatest creditor.' He was issued a warrant for 1100 acres of land in Pasquotank County for which he used the 'headrights' of twenty-two persons all but four of whom may be traced to Sarah's inheritance from her first husband. ..."

The Cranford Collection has a letter from "Mrs. Duncan," a genealogist and author, which quotes Patrick's will as stating: "I give unto the child that my wife now goes with al, if it be a boy two Negroes, if it be a girl one Negro, either boy or girl ..." so Sarah was pregnant in 1696. Mrs. Duncan says English records do not "uphold" the tradition that Robert was Lord Chancellor of England.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE HENLEY FAMILY IN VIRGINIA IN THE EARLY DAYS

It is impossible to give an accurate and detailed account of the earlier development of the HENLEY FAMILY in the Colony of Virginia, as it gradually established itself through the three original ancestors who appear on these early land records. Of the three HENLEYS mentioned in the early land records, evidence points to the THOMAS HENLEY as the ancestor of the family here being discussed.

THOMAS DODSON, who patented a tract of land in NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY in 1650, claimed the headrights of 24 persons whom he was supposed to have brought into the colony. Among them were THOMAS HENLEY, and MARY LINTON, RICE JONES and RICHARD NEIMS. The location of his patent did not necessarily indicate or determine the location of the emigrants whose names were attached thereto. We know that Rice Jones and Richard Nelms located in Lancaster and Northumberland County where they are found long afterwards. We also KNOW that the LINTONS settled in Lower Norfolk, with MOSES LINTON, the head of the tribe; and since, also long afterwards. The Lower Norfolk records show plenty of HENLEYS there, we think it almost conclusive proof that since THOMAS HENLEY and MARY LINTON were on the same Dodson patent, the HENLEYS and LINTONS both settled in Lower Norfolk. This conclusion is borne out by later entries on the records.

NEIGHBORS of the HENLEYS and LINTONS in Norfolk were THOMAS BULLOCK and Ensign THOMAS KERLING (Wm. & Mary 25; page 36). KEKLING was 24 years old in 1637 and BULLOCK was 28 in 1640. Both were heads of families and had children. JOHN RICHARDSON, another of their neighbors was 20 years old 1640, RICHARD FLEMING settled on LITTLE ORK. in Lower Norfolk in 1643. (Nugent - p. 147.) By the end of the century, around 1700. We find the FLEMINGS, KEELINGS, RICHARDSONS and BULLOCKS all residing within the bounds of St. Peter's Parish in King & Queen County, showing an ??dus of all these families to that section of the colony, where they had taken up lands and established plantations. Meantime there had been intermarriages in these families, and in a generation or two we find them related. As for the HENLEYS, they multiplied and replenished, and the "LOWER NORFOLK ANTIQUARY" by James, shows numerous members of the HENLEY family still living in LOWER NORFOLK COUNTY for many generations, and among names borne by the family which appear on these records were CHARLES, JAMES, THOMAS, JOHN, JESSE and MOSES HENLEY. January 28, 1792, JAMES HEATH was married to SARAH HENLEY. The Heaths were related to CHRISTOPHER GARLINGTON, mentioned in the Dodson patent in 1650 with THOMAS HENLEY. The

"Lower Norfolk Antiquary" shows the interesting item that one "URSULA HENLEY, was a witness in the famous "witch trial" of GRACE SHERWOOD, in PRINCES ANNE County (once a part of Lower Norfolk) in March, 1705-6."

GEORGE KEELING, called "Captain" on the New Kent Records, married URSULA FLEMING, and had a daughter URSULA KEELING. URSULA FLEMING, the daughter of CHARLES FLEMING, a generation later, married to TARLETON WOODSON, etc. LEONARD KEELING who appears in James City County in 1651/2 as a land owner, is believed by some to have been a brother of URSULA FLEMING and GEORGE KEELING. The KEELINGS picked up the name LEONARD, from their kinfolks and Lower Norfolk and Princess Anne neighbors, the HENLEYS - into which some of them had married - though we are unable to find the record of such a marriage. That it actually occurred is self-evident, in the light of the history of the several families thereafter. And so we conclude;

THOMAS HENLEY, who came to Lower Norfolk (or Princess Anne, which was once the same) married, possibly a Reynolds, daughter of KLIZA REYNOLDS (b. 1619) who was a widow and 41 years old in 1658. They had a son REYNOLDS HENLEY to whom a patent was issued in JAMES CITY COUNTY, which had been due by on assignment from THOMAS HOLLIDAY, who had come to NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY with the HENLEY emigrants, as heretofore related.

Thereafter, on October 26, 1694, this Reynolds Honley lands was patented to his son LEONARD HENLEY. And that is where our present HENLEY FAMILY of Virginia, begins.

This LEONARD HENLEY, who obtained his James City lands by patent in 1694, and/or his descendants shortly thereafter, probably removed to NEW KENT COUNTY, where they joined their relatives and former associates, the KEELINGS, BULLOCKS, FLEMINGS and RICHARDSONS, and there took on more kin -the DANDRIDGES.

GENEALOGY IN PRINT - BOOKS AND LIBRARY COLLECTIONS

From Cranford Collection, Colonial and State Records by Clark, Vol 24, page 987, Chapter XLII, 1788
An act for creating a town on the land of Thomas Dougan, in Randolph Co, NC (100 acres from Thomas Dougan) laid off into a town called Johnstonville (later becoming Asheboro, NC). Jesse Hendley appointed one of the commissioners and trustees designing, building and carrying on the said town to lay off the said lots and streets and alleys each lot to be 10 poles in front and 16 poles back. Where as there are 5 acres of land whereon the court house, prison and stocks do stand belonging to the said county and conveyed by deed from Stephen Rigdon for the use of said county. (This Jesse Henly the great uncle of Maria Cranford)

North Carolina State Library

Randolph County was formed in 1779 from Guilford. It was named in honor of Peyton Randolph of Virginia, who was president of the Continental Congress. It is in the central section of the State and is bounded by Chatham, Moore, Montgomery, Davidson, Guilford and Alamance counties. Its present land area is 787.26 square miles and its population in 1990 was 106,546. The act establishing the county authorized the first court and all subsequent courts to be held at the home of Abraham Reese unless otherwise decided upon by the justices of the peace until a courthouse could be built. Commissioners were named in 1783 to select a site for the county seat. This act directed that court be held at the home of William Bell until the courthouse was completed. In 1785 an act was passed removing the court from the house of William Bell and allowing the justices at each court to decide where the next court would meet until the courthouse was completed. In 1788 a town was established at the courthouse on the land of Thomas Duggan. This town, was named Johnstonville in honor of Samuel Johnston. In 1791 an act was passed authorizing the construction of a prison at the courthouse. In 1792 an act was passed authorizing commissioners to select a site in the center of the county and have a new courthouse erected, as the old courthouse was not in the center of the county. In 1796 Asheborough was established as the county seat on the land of Jesse Henley. In 1819 a new courthouse was authorized to be built in Asheborough. Asheboro is the county seat.

Barbara Grigg Collection: Jesse Henly lived on Caraway, where Winborne Andrews now lives and was the father of John Henley. In the year 1786 Jesse Henly entered two hundred acres of land at and including the centre of the county. In 1793 Jesse Henly conveyed to the Justices of the county and their successors, for the public buildings, two acres of this land. The county paid ten shillings for the two acres which formed a rectangle twenty poles north and south and sixteen poles east and west.

Sons & Daughters of the Pilgrims (FTM Online library), testimony of Henley Eversole, born 1863, says Jesse was the son of John Henley, born 11-7, 1717, died 7-10-1753 and his wife Mary Jordan, married August 1740. Henley Eversole said Jesse's wife was "Nancy Crews, died June 7, 1798." Most other genealogists believe Jesse was the son of John Henley, born abt 1694. Clarice H. Mitchell believes John I and John II both had sons named Jesse.

LDS on-line search shows Jesse Hinley born 1725 to John and Isabel Newby Henley. Married first Sarah Jones Oct 5, 1750 in Perquimins, NC, born 1729 in Perquimins, died abt 1761 in Pasquotank. Married second Ann "Pretow" Crew Jan 17, 1763 in Surry VA

Cranford Collection, from Winter Issue 1970 North Randolph Co Historical Society Quarterly, page 183: Jesse Henley of Albemarle Co, NC (brother to John Henley) married (Mrs.) Ann Pretlow of Surry Co VA. They located near Center Church in Randolph Co, near Back Creek church. Their progeny: John etc. (LH's note: much of what is listed in the Quarterly does not agree with what I've got. Quarterly cites no sources!)

Cranford Collection: Colonial and State records mentions Jesse, 1788, Vol 22 - Jesse in General Assembly and Militia.

Vol 20 Capt Henley fights (Fanning?). There are several references to Henly in the Assembly (spellings differ in these mentions).

Vol 22 page 8, 7-22-1788: Mr. Jesse Henley and Thomas Dougan two of the members for Randolph Co, took their seats.

OTHER RESEARCHERS

Hi L: ... since I didn't have the chance today to get the Eleanor Bell info copied, I thought I'd send some of it now to further confuse you!
p. 180 - Jesse Henley, b. 1725 in Pasquotank Co. NC, d. 7-13-1801 in Randolph Co. NC; m/1 5-10-1750 - Sarah Jones, who d. ca 1761 in Pasquotank Co. NC. Jesse...he was an overseer of the roads and main street in Nixonton. He bought and sold land and received Granville and Carteret Grants. He was appointed guardian for children of Benoni Pritchard, and daughter of John White, and John and Millicent Henly (sic), children of his brother John Henly. In 1755 he served in the Muster Roll of Regiments of Pasquotank County, in the Quaker Regiment, which served in the capacity of the present day Civil Defense, not as regular army.
In Jan 1763 Jesse requested a certificate by Surry MM, VA, to marry Ann (Crew) Pretlow.

There is much traditional information concerning Ann. The most popular is that she was the daughter of an Indian Princess...After many years of research...there is still no definite accurate background knowledge about Ann's ancestry. The same misinformation about John Elmore, the Cherokee Indian wife and their children has been handed down...

Among the earliest Quakers mentioned were John Crew of the Colony of VA who was an early organizer of meetings, a minister, and elder and treasurer of his MM and a missionary to the western mountain foothill country of Virginia, a long journey overland on foot. Tradition says that these travelers lived with the Indians when near the tribes, converting many and making friends as they went. John Elmore reportedly married an Indian maiden named An-nah Wah-Kah (English name Sarah-on-Holston-River in the Cherokee Nation. This river runs through Hawkins County in the northeastern section of present TN, on the far side of the mountains). Possibility: the tribe, of which she was a member, could have migrated northeasterly across the mountains into the Virginia foothills and was one visited by the missionary group. John Elmore married one of the maidens and took her back to his Meeting. They had seven children. The traditional record says:
"The children of John Elmore and An-nah Wah-Kah were taken and educated by the Society of Friends and married amongst them."

(I have the record of the children that has been handed down since before 1892 and the research I did for each of them. They all married and lived in Stokes and Guilford Counties, NC, and Jefferson County TN)

My Note: Unfortunately, the author didn't put this list of children in her manuscript. Hopefully, she also sent something to Raleigh on this.

To continue, p. 181 -

Much of the early traditional information does not agree with Hinshaw's abstracted records of the minutes of the meetings in Vol. I for NC and Vol. 6 for VA. For example: Sarah Elmore m. Jesse Henley and d. in Randolph Co. NC in 1813. Nowhere in records has this statement been found. Tradition also says that John Crew adopted Sarah Ann Elmore and changed her name to Ann Crew. No record of her was found until her marriage to Joshua Pretlow. Ann Crew Pretlow reported married 7-7-1753 in the home of John Crew, Charles City County, VA, Joshua Pretlow from Black Water MM. They lived in Sussex County, Colony of VA, north of Perquimans Co. NC. he was born ca 1728 (?), d. 1761.

Their Children:

1. Rebeckah Pretlow, b. ca 1754; m. 5-17-1772 James Hunnicutt of Black Water MM.
2. Thomas Pretlow, Jr., b. ca 1758; m. 9-20-1783 in Surry Co. VA Ann Bailey, dtr. of Samuel and Sarah of Surry Co. VA
3. Anne Pretlow, b. ca 1760; m. Robert Ricks, who produced a certif. from Western Branch MM, Isle of Wight County, to marry.

Rebeckah was ca 9 years of age, Thomas was ca 5 years of age, and Anne ca 3 years of age when Ann married Jesse Henly (sic). The only records we have of them are in VA where Thomas Pretlow, probably a brother of Joshua, was their guardian after the death of Joshua, and they became a part of his family when Ann married Jesse Henly and removed to Pasquotank County NC. In his will, Jesse left one dollar each to Rebeckah Hunnicutt, Thomas Pretlow, and Anne Ricks, his step-children.

Compare the above record of Sarah Elmore with the Time-Line of Jesse Henley taken from original Meeting Minutes and court records. From Symons Creek MM, 7-6-1750, Jesse requested certif. to Perquimans MM to marry Sarah Jones, who d. ca 1761 in Pasquotank Co.

Jesse Henley and Ann (Crew) Pretlow were at liberty to marry 1-15-1763 and were married during the next meeting. No definite date is determined for their removal to Rowan County, but because of the purchase of land in 10-21-1765, which evidently became the home place since he built a mill there in 1770, and the last sale of his Pasquotank land in 1766, it seems likely that the move from Pasquotank to Rowan County was ca 1765. The first child, Isabel, was born 9-12-1763 in Pasquotank county, and son John was born 12-27-1766 in Rowan County.

Skipping back, p. 169 - John Henley, b. ca 1693/94 in Pasquotank Co. JLa1029@aol.com - James Atkinson?, says Jesse married Ann ? in 1763, in Black Creek MM, VA, and they had a son named Jesse in 1770.

Clarice Mitchell (clarice@mail.tima.com) says he married Ann Crews or Elmore.

LDS ancestral file AFN:133S-PL6

Says Jesse Henley, b 1725, d 7-13-1801, married Sarah Jone, 5 Oct 1750, Perquimans MM, Perquimans, NC

Married 2 Ann Pretow Crew Jan 15, 1763, Surry MM, Surry, VA.

Gordon Williams (Gordon_Williams@vfc.com) says: " Jesse (1725-1801) appeared in court records in Pasquotank Co on July 2, 1745 in relation to a deed. By Oct 21, 1765, his name shows up in Rowan Co records when he purchased 140 acres on 'both sides of Trading Path and both sides of Deep River in Rowan Co,' now Randolph. On November 19, 1766, he was received into New Garden MM by certificate from Pasquotank. Later he was listed among the original members of Back Creek MM, organized in 1792. He apparently added to his land holdings from time to time. In fact, some have thought he was a kind of land speculator, buying and selling to his financial profit. The records of Randolph Co (organized in 1779) show that he purchased at least 26 parcels of land. At his death in 1801 he left a total of 5,452 acres to his children. He was generous with his land. He gave over 400 acres to three slave families when he liberated them years before slavery was a burning issue. On December 25, 1796, he gave 50 acres to 'establish a town at site of courthouse to be called Asheborough.' Jesse had at least 7 children. His youngest son, Stephen, became the father of David Vestal Henley, who with his wife is the subject of this chapter. David, Stephen's youngest son, was only two years old when his father died in 1820 of 'Cramp colic,' probably appendicitis. In 1844 he married a Methodist girl, Eleanor Lassiter, whose family were loyal and active members of Oak Grove Methodist Church on the west side of Uwharrie River. The source of this information was a book called 'Deep River Friends Meeting,' a book I obtained from the Greensboro Library. I live in Greensboro." Gordon says Jesse married Anna Pritlow Jan 15, 1763 in Surry MM, Surry, VA.

Researcher Betty Vollenweiden says Jesse served, in 1755, in the Quaker Regiment of the Regiments of Pasquotank Co. Apparently this was a regiment for civil defense, not regular army.

MISC NOTES / QUESTIONS/ FOLLOWUP

Did Jesse, son of John I, marry Nancy Crews, Ann Crew, Ann Pretlow, Ann Elmore or, as the Hale relatives testified to the Dawes Commission, he married Sarah Elmore???? There is much disagreement about his wife or wives. By some accounts, it appears that all of Jesse's children are by a wife named Ann.

This is probably the Jesse Henley shown by census to be in Pasquotank Co, NC 1754, especially since a Mary Henley is also listed. Hinshaw shows 1788, 9, 21 John, son of Jesse, Randolph Co. married Keziah Nixon at Little River Meeting House near Newbegun Creek. Hinshaw shows that Keziah was attached to Center MM prior to her marriage.

Need to check if any of the sons of Joseph and Mourning Anderson Henley had a son named John.

NEED TO SORT AND MOVE

NC census shows an Elmore Henly in Bute Co, NC in 1771. Elmore shows up again in Wake Co, NC in 1790. Both times he is only Henly or Henley in those Counties. An E. Henley shows up in Franklin Co, GA in 1802. An Edmund Henley also shows up in GA as same and later dates.

WHAT WE KNOW FOR SURE:

Ann or Anne Crew married Joshua Pretlow in 1753. In 1761 or 1762, Joshua died. Jesse Henley's will proves that this Ann Crew was his wife after Joshua died. Jesse married her in 1763. In Jesse's will he names his stepchildren, Ann, Rebecca and Thomas - the children of Joshua.

Quaker Records of Henrico MM, F. Edward Wright, Colonial Roots, Lewes, DE:

P28 May 5, 1753 Joshua Pretlo and Ann Crew, dau of --- of Charles City Co. announced their intentions to marry, he producing a certificate from Blackwater MM. They were married June 2, 1753, but it was not recorded in the Henrico MM records until Sept 9, 1756 (P31).

Terry45373 on Ancestry.com says Ann Crew was daughter of John Crew, Jr. and Agatha Ellyson. Others show a John and Catherine Crew as parents of an Ann Crew. It appears there were several Ann Crews' about the right age and in the right communities. One of them apparently married William Lane. John Crew Jr's parents were John and Sarah Gatley Crew. Agatha Ellyson's were Gerrard Robert Ellyson and Sarah Crew Ellyson.

Barbara Grigg Collection, by Isme Larrance

"Joseph Henley, son of John and Mary (Albertson) Henley, lived in 1833 in Randolph County, North Carolina, along the Uwharrie River in the vicinity of Hills Store, the Uwharrie Meeting, etc. He first came to Indiana in 1818 or 1819 to 'Spy out the land' and left money and instructions with his brother in law, Robert Hill of Wayne County, Indiana, to enter land for him in Rush County when the Land Office opened in Brookville in 1821. He and Aaron Hill made a trip (as per a diary kept by Aaron) in 1829 to again look things over, but Joseph did not come bring his family until 1837. By the time his wife, Peninah, died in 1860 all ten of his living children were living in Rush County."

"Tristram Coggeshall, to whom the first part of the letter is written, was living in Rush County, having married Joseph's niece, Milliscent Newby. Milliscent was the daughter of Joseph's sister, Penelope, and Joseph Newby. Joseph Newby had died in January of 1831 and his widow, Penelope, removed with her son Henry and his wife Sarah (Thornburg) Newby to Duck Creek M.M. 11.22.1832. She may have been living with them, or with daughter Milliscent. At least Joseph was able to write to both Tristram and Penelope in the same letter. Joseph's son Henry, is mentioned. He was in Rush County as early as 1828, probably caring for his father's land. He entered land of his own in 1833, and in 1834 laid out the town lots of Carthage with John Clark. Joseph also mentions his brother, Jesse, who died 10th month 23, 1834, more than a year after his mill burned and 'a Most broke Him down.'

"Joseph's spelling and grammar are not the best, but no doubt high above the average for a non-Quaker farmer of his day. I like his spellings and expressions - 'Destresing, takeindown, a Mong, a Most, a Gain, Medlingwel Satisfid, Indianna, etc.' One must remember to read most the the's as 'thee' to make the letter clear.

"Reference to letter 'rote at Micajas' would be Joseph's brother, Micahah who m. Guildma Charles, and lived in Wayne County, on the road on which I now live."

In Lyford's file is photocopy of transcript from diary of Aaron Hill as he traveled from North Carolina to Indiana and back in 1829 with Joseph Henley.

Obtained by LH from the NARA/Federal Records Center, Fort Worth, TX, 2-1-99:

Copies of the sworn testimony submitted by the Hales in 1886 as they attempted to prove Cherokee heritage.

Using the testimony of "half-breed" Cherokees Cynthia Scarlett of Randolph County, NC, and Nancy Beckerdite, they claimed Cherokee blood from Sarah Henley, daughter of John Henley. Cynthia was 95 in 1886. She said she knew Sarah Henley Hale to be "a person of Cherokee Indian descent who was born in Randolph County and State of North Carolina in the year A.D. 1799 and died in Randolph County on the 14th day of December, A.D. 1885. That she was well acquainted with this said Sarah Hale from the year A.D. 1802 until the date of her death as aforesaid that the said Sarah Hale was the daughter of one John Henly, a Half Breed Cherokee Indian who it is said was born on the Cherokee Indian reservation East of Mississippi River in the year A.D. 1767 and died in Randolph County and State of North Carolina in the year A.D. 1842. That she was well acquainted with the said John Henly in his life time from the year A.D. 1802 until the date of death of the said John Henly as aforesaid that the said John Henly was a son of one Sarah Henly whose maiden name was Sarah Elmore a Cherokee Indian woman who it is said was born on the Cherokee Indian Reservation East of the Mississippi River and died in Randolph County and State of North Carolina in the year A.D. 1813. That she was well acquainted with the said Sarah Henly in her life time from the year AD 1802 until the date of her death as aforesaid that she knows that the said Sarah Henly was a Cherokee Indian woman and a recognized member of the Cherokee tribe of Indians in her life time that she was well acquainted with one Mary Winslow in her life time that the said Mary Winslow was a person of Cherokee Indian descent and was born in Randolph County and State of North Carolina on the 26th Day of January A.D. 1840 and died in Cleveland County and State of North Carolina on the 24th Day of March A.D. 1876 and was the daughter of the said Sarah Hale as aforesaid that the said Mary Winslow was a Sister to the said Jane McDaniel, Edward H. Hale and Samuel H. Hale as aforesaid witness."

(from LDS records, Synthia Scarlett, daughter of Stephen and Sally, born in Orange Co, NC about 1799- could this person be related to woman in above records? Was Scarlett a married name?)

Further testimony from Nancy Beckerdite Briles, mother-in-law of Priscilla Hale, stated the same "facts."

Orange Co NC marriage records to 1825, Ancestry.com, show Cynthia Allen married to John Scarlett, Jan 16, 1790 in Orange Co.

Lidia Lewis married James Scarlett Jan 21, 1790 same place. Cynthia and John could be Cynthia's parents.

MISC NOTES / QUESTIONS/ FOLLOWUP

Harlen was about 30 when his father died. He became a Quaker -- or at least was received by Back Creek MM -- 10 years after his marriage.

Harlen's headstone is in Back Creek Cemetery, across the street from the Back Creek Meeting House (Pastor is Ray Lambe, as of 1998). Headstone reads: " Harlen B. Hale, 6th of 5th mo 1853. Aged 54 years 1 mo & 2 days." This viewed by LH on 9-23-98. Harlen's grave is about 14 feet directly left of large headstone of Dr. Barney Nixon. Back Creek is about three miles west of Asheboro, just a block off Highway 64.

Follow up to find out where the "Bolden" came from:
Dawes Roll or Index?? lists a Joe Ellis Bolden, Cherokee. FTM shows a CD of Delaware and Maryland marriages has a Jane Bolden.
NC census of 1790 shows a number of Holdens in counties around Randolph.
There are Boldens in Orange Co, which is next to Randolph.

Addressed to: Trestum COGGSHALL, Rush County, State of Indiana

Barbara Grigg Collection, by Isme Larrance

"Joseph Henley, son of John and Mary (Albertson) Henley, lived in 1833 in Randolph County, North Carolina, along the Uwharrie River in the vicinity of Hills Store, the Uwharrie Meeting, etc. He first came to Indiana in 1818 or 1819 to 'Spy out the land' and left money and instructions with his brother in law, Robert Hill of Wayne County, Indiana, to enter land for him in Rush County when the Land Office opened in Brookville in 1821. He and Aaron Hill made a trip (as per a diary kept by Aaron) in 1829 to again look things over, but Joseph did not come bring his family until 1837. By the time his wife, Peninah, died in 1860 all ten of his living children were living in Rush County."

"Tristram Coggeshall, to whom the first part of the letter is written, was living in Rush County, having married Joseph's niece, Milliscent Newby. Milliscent was the daughter of Joseph's sister, Penelope, and Joseph Newby. Joseph Newby had died in January of 1831 and his widow, Penelope, removed with her son Henry and his wife Sarah (Thornburg) Newby to Duck Creek M.M. 11.22.1832. She may have been living with them, or with daughter Milliscent. At least Joseph was able to write to both Tristram and Penelope in the same letter. Joseph's son Henry, is mentioned. He was in Rush County as early as 1828, probably caring for his father's land. He entered land of his own in 1833, and in 1834 laid out the town lots of Carthage with John Clark. Joseph also mentions his brother, Jesse, who died 10th month 23, 1834, more than a year after his mill burned and 'a Most broke Him down.'

"Joseph's spelling and grammar are not the best, but no doubt high above the average for a non-Quaker farmer of his day. I like his spellings and expressions - 'Destresing, takeindown, a Mong, a Most, a Gain, Medlingwel Satisfid, Indianna, etc.' One must remember to read most the the's as 'thee' to make the letter clear.

"Reference to letter 'rote at Micajas' would be Joseph's brother, Micahah who m. Guildma Charles, and lived in Wayne County, on the road on which I now live."

In Lyford's file is photocopy of transcript from diary of Aaron Hill as he traveled from North Carolina to Indiana and back in 1829 with Joseph Henley.

*Lyford,
Noticed that you were looking for some information on the Henley's and specifically Jesse. The below information, I found in a book here at the Greensboro Public Library. Eleanor Lassiter and David Vestal Henley were my 2nd Great grandparents and they are buried at the Deep River Friends cemetery here in Greensboro/Jamestown, NC. Maybe some information contained below could be of some help to you....at least I hope so. If not it makes for some fun reading about their lives. I also have some pictures that I scanned of them from my web site.

DAVID AND ELEANOR LASSITER HENLEY

Reprinted from Book Titled "Deep River Friends"

In many ways the story of David Vestal Henley is very similar to that of many Quakers coming into the Piedmont during the latter half of the 1700s. His grandfather, a John Henley probably born in England, appeared in North Carolina Quaker records because of his death on August 3, 1758, in Pasquotank County, Albemarle Province. John's son, Jesse (1725-1801), appeared in court records in Pasquotank County on July ii, 1745, in relation to a deed. By October 21, 1765, his name shows up in Rowan County records when he purchased 140 acres "on both sides of Trading Path and both sides of Deep River in Rowan County," now Randolph. On November 19, 1766, he was received into New Garden Monthly Meeting by certificate from Pasquotank. Later he was listed among the original members of Back Creek Monthly Meeting, organized in 1792.

He apparently added to his land holdings from time to time. In fact, some have thought he was a kind of land speculator, buying and selling to his financial profit. The records of Randolph County (organized in 1779) show that he purchased at least twenty-six parcels of land. At his death in 1800 he left a total of 5,452 acres to his children. He was generous with his land. He gave over 400 acres to three slave families when he liberated them years before slavery was a burning issue. On December 25, 1796, he gave 50 acres "to establish a town at site of courthouse to be called Asheborough."

Jesse had at least seven children. His youngest son, Stephen, became the father of David Vestal Henley, who with his wife is the subject of this chapter. David, Stephen's youngest son, was only two years old when his father died in 1820 of "Cramp colic," probably appendicitis. In 1844 he married a Methodist girl, Eleanor Lassiter, whose family were loyal and active members of Oak Grove Methodist Church on the west side of the Uwharrie River. Today a well kept country church is on the same site, with a panoramic view of the Uwharrie River and the beautiful Uwharrie Valley.

Macajah Lassiter was a large landowner and successful businessman. As was common in those days Macajah had a large family: ten children by his first wife and eleven by his second. Eleanor was number nine. Macajah's tombstone, which stands some five feet tall, is fairly legible today after these more than 130 years and reads as follows:

*Macajah Lassiter Departed this life June 3rd, 1854
Aged 90 years / He was twice married / 21 children 96 grandchildren / 81 great grand children and 4 greatgreat-grand children.*

Eleanor must have had a strong attachment to and love for her childhood church for it was eighteen years after their marriage before she became a Friend. David was a faithful member of Back Creek Meeting where he served in various responsible positions including that of clerk for many years.

THE WAR YEARS

The Henley family suffered much during the Civil War. They had to bury their valuables under the pig pen and they kept their horses tethered as far back in the woods as they thought they could find them again. Often deserters were hiding in nearby woods and they would appear frequently at the house pleading for food. Eleanor would feed them, often at great risk to herself. On occasion they would sit at the family table, their guns beside them, expecting at any time to hear the sound of horses' feet on their trail. David did not have to go to war because he was not physically strong and perhaps partly because of his age since he was in his middle forties at that time. Later he did have to pay $500 in lieu of his going and also a similar amount for his oldest son.

The Henley's had heard such good reports from Friends who had earlier gone to Ohio and Indiana that they made plans to go west even before the war was over. They made arrangements with a neighbor, William Lowe, to look after the farm and the affairs left behind. But when they considered the size of the family (twelve children including a tiny baby), the amount of provisions required for them and the horses, and the capacity of the covered wagon which was to carry them and all their goods, it seemed too big an undertaking. They decided to buy a farm in Guilford County, near Deep River Meeting House, adjoining that of David's sister, Anna, who had earlier married Henry Davis of the Deep River community.

MOVING TO DEEP RIVER

The move was made by installments, the older children going to the new farm to care for things there while the little ones with the mother and father at the old home. David was going back and forth much of the time. The old farm, near the confluence of Carraway Creek and the Uwharrie River, was only thirty-five miles from the new one. But the family traveled slowly on their final trip, partly because they were also driving the cows and sheep. The first night found them at Brown's Crossroads where they secured a room for Mother Eleanor and six-weeks-old Eunice while the men camped out in the wagon to watch after their load and the animals. The second night they were within one mile of the new home when they finally succumbed to the pitiful cries of the little baby who had had colic most of the way. The William Beard family (of Beard's Hat Shop) welcomed the mother and babe into their home for the night while the others completed the journey. The next morning Eleanor walked the remaining mile carrying little Eunice and whatever things they retained for sleeping overnight.

Here they established themselves on a large farm and were soon a part of the community. Eventually there were thirteen children, not counting two who died in infancy. Much later they "adopted" an orphan girl (Ava Sheckells, later Mrs. Bunyon Mcpherson) who lived in the home for several years to help care for the mother in her declining years. Eunice married J. Winston Blair. Eleanor lived to be ninety-two and died in 1903. So eventually the family numbered eighteen, including the parents, although some of the older children had probably left home before the youngest were very old.

AT WORK IN THE MEETING

The responsibility of such a large family did not deter David and Eleanor from participating in community affairs and especially in the Friends meeting. David was an elder for all of his later years and Eleanor, after serving as an elder for twenty-four years was recorded as a minister in 1890. The family was so regular in attending meeting twice a week that even the farm animals seemed to be aware of the calendar. The Henley's used a pair of mules to convey them for a number of years and tied them to a specific tree on the meeting house grounds. On one occasion midweek meeting had been cancelled. But one of the mules which had been turned loose to graze did not forget her weekly chore. She betook herself to the meeting house and was found standing dutifully by her hitching tree.

LABORS ON THE FARM

The burden of the work in caring for such a large family fell especially heavily on the mother. All cooking was done at an open fireplace until about 1855 when a stove peddler came along and a stove was purchased. To the women fell the task of preparing cotton, flax, and wool for making into garments and bedding. Dye stuffs came from the fields, the woods, the garden, and the hedgerows. They were "set" with copperas, alum, rusty nails, salt, and turpentine. Soap and candles were made in the home. Even the candlewicks were made from cotton and spun into a string. Corn husks were made into sun hats, fans and dolls; braided into door mats and twisted into cords for chair bottoms, scrub mops, and mattresses for the beds. Of course, all the foods, winter and summer, came from the farm and were prepared in the kitchen.

The men had to make many of their tools and improvise for many needs. A strip of hickory bark, for instance, served to hold a gate closed. A blacksmith shop on the farm did most of the metal work necessary and provided a place for horse shoeing. Repairs to plows, wagons, buggies and tools were necessary. Many small articles for home use such as fruit peelers and corers were made there. Although every farmer, even Quakers, kept a gun, David Henley probably did not make his own. The 1850 census listed eighteen gunsmiths and eighteen gunstockers in the Jamestown-Deep River area. The Henley shop was large enough to accommodate woodworking. Ox yokes, cradles for reaping, grain bins, looms, water and feed troughs, and probably some household furniture also came from such a shop.

TRIBUTES TO LIFE AND CHARACTER

After all the hard work was done in providing a home and a living, David and Eleanor still found time to care for religious, educational, and humanitarian concerns. David was an elder in the meeting after 1874 until his death twenty-nine years later. Of him the Deep River Meeting wrote in his memorial:

His worth was recognized by Friends when quite young, as is shown by his being appointed to fill many positions of trust in the meetings to which he belonged. . . . He seemed especially concerned for the welfare of the young people and feared that some were "quenching the Spirit." He often admonished them in public and in private to do all that the Lord required of them. . . . He was an affectionate and devoted husband and father, tender and thoughtful in the care of his family.

It should be added that he often, and perhaps usually, accompanied his wife on her visits to other meetings. Their names appear frequently in the minutes of Deep River Monthly Meeting.

Eleanor was also appointed an elder in 1876, and in 1890 she was recorded as a minister. In the memorial prepared by her meeting after her death it was written of her:

She spent much time and traveled many miles visiting meetings, families, jails, almshouses and doing whatever the Lord directed. Her life was largely spent in loving ministrations to others at the bedside of the sick and suffering, comforting the dying and those in distress. . . . She was strong in principle, pure and upright in character, loving, kind and patient in disposition, industrious in habit, and ever true to her convictions of right.

David and Eleanor Henley raised a family of fifteen children about whom a neighbor said, "There wasn't a black sheep among them." Four sons and nine daughters, each lived to be sixty-five or more, and led lives of usefulness and service, each one worthy of a memorial similar to that of their parents. They, too, raised fine families - a total of fifty-two in the third generation and at least ninety-four in the fourth, and current, generation. So In just such a way is the rich heritage of a nineteenth century family carried on and passed to a still younger generation to be a blessing in their time.

The names of the fifteen children are:

Dougan Clarke Henley 1845-1931

Mary Henley Williams 1846-1934

Much of the material in this chapter has been gleaned from an unpublished manuscript entitled, "Linsey-Woolsey Days," Original Memoirs of Jessie Henley Parker. This material has been edited by Mrs. Parker's daughter, Eleanor Parker Bell who is a great-granddaughter of David and Eleanor Henley, the subjects of this chapter.

The writer has also made visits to the Oak Grove Methodist Church and that community and to the old Henley farm, less than a mile from Deep River Meeting House. He has also talked at length with the several grandchildren still living in this general area.

RELATIVES

Hale family notes say his birthday is the 10th.

Family records refer to him as both Edward Harlan and Edward Henley. Family is related to both Harlans and Henleys, but Sam Hale's birth certificate says his father was Edward Henley Hale.

Hubert Sanders letter to Areatha Hale Wildman has some family background info. LH has a copy of the letter. It says, in part, that:

The Branson Sanders family moved to Kansas in 1868. The Hale and Sanders families moved to Indiana in 1874. Then to Arkansas, then to Bluejacket in the Northeastern part of Oklahoma.

Edward worked on the Indiana farm of John and Rachel Wildman, Uncle Erwin's parents. The first mention of this is in the Wildman's ledger dated 1875. Edward worked on the Wildman farm and was a carpenter during the time the family was living near the Wildman farm in Wabash.

Family moved from Ind. to Ark in 1881 or 1882, staying for about two years. Mary Jane was about 1 1/2 years old when they moved to Cherokee County, Kansas, staying about three years.

In the late 1890's Ed Hale and the older boys went to New Salem in central Oklahoma. They built a house. When finished, Sarah and the other children traveled by train to New Salem. See the certificate of removal above.

From a brother or sister of Sam Hale:

"Don't know just when Father began to try to prove info on his claim (Cherokee) but it was because of that prospect that we moved to Bluejacket and that was long before March 7, 1907.

In fact, we moved there some time in Nov, I think, and you were born in Feb.; I have just called Beulah to know what she may remember about it, but didn't get any answer."

MISC NOTES / QUESTIONS/ FOLLOWUP

The 1907 lawsuit listed people who believed they were owed money due to Cherokees by the government included John and Anna Henley and Edward Hale, born High Point NC 1-11-1838. This is from the Muskogee Area Office, Muskogee, Ok. 1962. The birthday corresponds to our Edward Henley Hale, but I don't know about John and Anna Henley. This is not proof of Indian heritage, only proof that the relatives believed they were part Cherokee.

From Christian Church, Tuttle, OK 11-28-03:

I have found out a couple of things for you. The lady that I checked with told me that she would do some more looking. Anyway, she told me that he (Luther) had two daughters. By the church membership records, it was a family of four: Luther Hale, Mrs. L. Hale, Ruby Hale, & Alhie Hale. That last name I spelled exactly as it is in the register. I'm not sure if it is correct spelling or not. I do not see any Appleby's or Hargrave's in the register. She also told me that Mr. Hale was a great builder. In fact, he built a house right next door to where I am living. My parents now own the house that he built and rent it out. It is still standing! Anyway, that is all the information she had off the top of her head. I'll let you know if she comes up with something else if this is your great uncle.

Notes for ADDISON J. HALE:
Never married -- Hale family notes.

Check AJ Hale and Addison J Hale. Appears these are two different people with the same name, one the son of John Hale the other the son of Samuel Hale.

Addison J. bought land from Edmond Luck and George Thompson in 1855 and 1856, in Randolph Co., per General Index to RE Conveyances. Record shows many AJ Hale purchases and deeds (but which AJ?)

Vol 61 The Heritage of Randolph Co 1993, Cheryl Martin, Editor: Addison was living in 1857. Vol 5 shows him an AJ as Clerk of Randolph Superior Court. Randolph Co. Public Library file, Asheboro, shows Judge A.J. Hale born in NC 1823, son of John H. Hale and Margaret Hung, both natives of NC. He was twice clerk of the Superior Court.

Notes for ELIZABETH (HALE):
She is wife of a different Addison Hale, I believe. This needs to be moved Obituary of Mrs. Elizabeth Hale, from Greensboro Patriot, Guilford Co, NC Newspaper. Dated 24 August 1860.

DIED - On Friday 13th July, at Marshfield, Mo., Mrs. Elizabeth Hale, wife of A.J. Hale, aged 30 years.

Until a few months ago Mrs. Hale had been a resident of Asheborough, N.C. Having left her many friends there, she had gone to seek a home in Missouri, but had just reached it when she was taken sick and died after a painful illness of ten days.

As her life had been one of Christian virtue, so was hers a glorious death; happy in the confidence of her repentance in Christ, she died without fear and with no regret but at being separated from her husband and children.

At the tender age of fourteen years she gave her heart to God and devoted her life to his Service, and was ever afterwards a consistent member of the M.E. Church. She never forgot the vows then taken - as a mother, a wife and a friend she discharged her duties in prayer for Devine aid and in hope of Divine acceptance.

"Death is another life: to her a life of bliss in Heaven, the eternal reward for her Godly work on earth - Her friends mourn her loss here; the Angels rejoice with her in Heaven."
